

An Informative Half-day Workshop:

Fall Protection

For Residential Construction

1 Who Should Attend . . .

This workshop is a must for anyone concerned about health and safety on the job including:

- ▶ Managers concerned about liability and workers' compensation costs.
- ▶ Employees who want to learn proper techniques for protecting their safety and health at work.
- ▶ Business owners who want to learn about compliance with Michigan Occupational Safety and Health Administration (MIOSHA).

2 Why You Need This Workshop . .

- ▶ To reduce disabling injuries and illnesses to employees - and to ensure that every worker goes home safe and healthy every day.
- ▶ To reduce the high costs of work-related injuries. Nationally, employers spent an estimated 50.8 billion on wage payments and medical care for workers hurt on the job. (Liberty Mutual Safety Index 2005) This is only a portion of the total costs of work-related injuries. Indirect costs such as overtime, training and lost productivity can also burden employers.
- ▶ To enhance your company's bottom line. A strong safety and health commitment not only protects workers, it also reduces workers compensation costs, improves employee morale, and increases production and quality.

3 What You'll Learn . . .

The class will cover fall exposures for residential construction and fall protection criteria per MIOSHA. In addition, there will be an explanation of the MIOSHA agency directive for residential construction, a video on residential fall protection, and detailed instructions for builders followed by a question and answer period.

Facilitator

Patrick Sullivan began his MIOSHA career as a compliance officer with the Construction Safety Division in 1994. Seeking a new challenge he transferred to the CET Division as a traditional consultant specializing in construction safety. He enjoys reaching out to employers and employees to help them be proactive instead of reactive to jobsite safety.

In 1976 Patrick started as a laborer and then in 1977 joined the Bricklayers Union as an apprentice. After completing his apprenticeship Patrick worked on many of Detroit's major building restoration projects. His MIOSHA enforcement experience and extensive knowledge of all types of scaffolding, fall protection and all other aspects of the construction industry make him a valuable teacher and consultant for the CET Division. His experiences investigating serious construction accidents and fatalities make him a passionate advocate for preplanning construction projects and promoting safety on every jobsite.
